2016 WINNERS:

AMERICAN GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY COUNCIL FELLOWSHIP

In 2013, the councilors of the American Geographical Society created the AGS Council Fellowship to support graduate student scholarship in pursuit of geographical knowledge, and especially fieldwork. The fellowship is open to all student members of the American Geographical Society, both Masters and Doctoral Students. Each fellowship is worth $1,500 and four will be awarded in the spring.

The AGS Council Fellowship is now accepting applications for 2017!

Upon completion of the research, fellowship recipients are strongly encouraged to submit an article based upon their research to one of the AGS publications, such as the Geographical Review. The AGS Council Fellowship recipients will be announced in March 2017.

For details about technical requirements please go to:

<http://americangeo.org/fellowship>

Proposals should contain the following components:

1. A cover page containing the project name, applicant's name, position, affiliation, telephone number, postal address, and email address (1 page maximum);
2. A narrative that outlines the proposed research, specifies the reason for doing the research by placing it in the context of published work, and describes how results will be disseminated (3 page maximum);
3. A bibliography, containing only those items listed in the narrative (1 page maximum);
4. An abbreviated curriculum vitae emphasizing factors that illustrate the applicant's competence/experience in the proposed area of research (2 page maximum);
5. A budget (maximum $1,500) itemizing expenses, with brief justification for each expense category (1 page maximum)

Ms. Debangana Bose,
The Ohio State University

Ms. Rakhee Kewada, CUNY
Graduate Center

Applications for the award must be received in the AGS office by November 1st, 2016. Digital submissions only. To be considered an applicant, one must be a current member of the American Geographical Society and a graduate student. The AGS Council Fellowships Program will consider proposals concerned with any sub-field of geography. The program encourages, but does not require, a fieldwork component.
